

Equity, Diversity, and Inclusion at Kids Cancer Care

Kids Cancer Care is and has always been a place of belonging and acceptance for children affected by cancer. We believe in the power of diversity and are dedicated to creating an inclusive and equitable environment for the children and families we serve. All Alberta children and families affected by cancer are welcome at Kids Cancer Care — regardless of differences in physical or mental ability, gender identification or sexual orientation, cultural or religious beliefs, or ethnic origins. We realize that what makes us unique makes us remarkable. We realize that exposure to different perspectives and new ways of thinking and being can enrich our lives and expand our compassion. At our camp programs, there may be young people with different cancers, late effects, abilities, ethnicities, religions, and cultures. There may be young people who are socially or medically transitioning their gender or who are identifying as non-binary. These children may be placed in dorms and camper groups with the gender they identify. Please know that we make every effort to accommodate all requests from Kids Cancer Care families and strive to ensure that each child feels safe, comfortable, and supported regardless of their differences. We are committed to respecting and ensuring the privacy and confidentiality of every child and family.
